

Resurrection

A Message from Jeshua to Nick and his supporters

Easter Sunday, 24 April, 2011

Yes, Sharon, this is Yeshua.

I would say good morning. It might be appropriate to say Happy Easter.

The resurrection does not rouse as many unpleasant – I won't call them memories – unpleasant, well I suppose you could call them emotions, although we don't have emotions the way humanity does. Resurrection does not arouse as many unpleasant reactions for me, personally, as does the Christmas celebration. I think that is a safe way to say it.

At least with the resurrection there is an example that humanity can turn to. When they are able to see that example clearly for what it is, then there will be more hope yet, for the resurrection is an objective. The resurrection is proof that the continuity of the soul is not limited to the duration of one physical incarnation.

The false teaching begins with the assumption that I am the only soul in the entire of human history that has emerged as a body of light after the physical body of incarnation has ceased to exist and function. This is absurd.

Every single soul continues after the physical body of the incarnation it happens to be using has ceased to exist. Now, not every soul is ready to return to Earth in a full body of light, that I will admit. That should be clear just looking at some of the behaviors that went on during that particular incarnation. But you see, every single soul has the same potential.

Now, I had not intended this to turn into a message to Nick and his followers, I was simply using this time to talk about my own feelings on this Easter Sunday. But Bill did ask for a message on the resurrection.

Of necessity, this will be belated. But I would say to Bill, who is Nick's website administrator, that his request is a thoughtful request for Nick's supporters. I would ask that you [as my channel] get this message to them as quickly as you can. And I would ask Nick and his supporters to understand the demands that we are making on your time that prevented this from being a more timely message.

All that aside, the message of the resurrection remains. I demonstrated in that life thousands of years ago, the potential inherent in every single human soul by virtue of its existence as a spark of God. Every human incarnation has the seed of Christ Consciousness within, and that is the connection with the soul and with God. Every single human soul has the potential that I demonstrated on that Easter Sunday and the days that followed.

There are no exclusions to this potential. None.

We are simply facing the fact that individuals are at different places on the pyramid Nick presents to explain spiritual progress. Others see this as a straight, level path with some travelers farther down the road than others. I would ask you, as part of the inclusiveness that must be part of this bridge you are building, that you will allow those who wish to see advancement as a straight path with some farther ahead, that they be as welcome on this site as those who envision a pyramid. The idea, the essence, is in each visualization. And it is important – it is extremely important – that this bridge you are building be inclusive. I have said that before, and I will say that again.

Just as the potential of resurrection is the same for every soul, though they may get there at different points in eternity, the way the progress is envisioned can be as varied as necessary to make everyone feel comfortable with the fact that there is a spiritual progression goes from incarnation to the between-life state, to the next incarnation, to the next between-life state.

Eventually you reach the point, be it the top of Nick's pyramid or a particular milestone on a straight path, where it is no longer necessary to return and incarnate again. Your work does not stop there. But that is another message.

This morning, which for me is Easter morning, when the churches are filled with singing, and hope, and joy for spring, I wish to focus on the joy of the human potential.

What you, as Nick's supporters, are working on is a resurrection of core teachings that have been buried over time. They have been buried for many, many reasons. Some of those reasons were good and true intentions, heartfelt beliefs that the decisions made were guiding the flock in the best way possible.

Some of the distortions were not so positively motivated. But they all work together. They compound with one another and hide what my friend and coworker, Mother Mary, called the beauty of the teachings.

Your bridge, my friends, is the effort to uncover the beauty of those teachings and resurrect core truths, that these truths may go forth in their own light body, as it were – and that these truths, in their own light body, may walk among humanity once again.

I will leave you with my blessings, and, as always, with my gratitude to Nick, and to Bill for requesting a message on this topic, and to you who support this work. I will wish you a somewhat belated Happy Easter in the hopes that you will not limit the spirit of resurrection to a specific day, in a specific week, in a specific month on the calendar.

Blessings on you,
Jeshua
