

What Will I Have You Say About Me?

A Message from Mother Mary to Nick and his supporters

This is Mother Mary. I thank Nick, and I thank you all, you who are supporting him, for this opportunity to speak to you.

You are going into the heart of the Roman Catholic faith. You are going into the vital organs, as it were, and asking for the truth. You are peeling back layers of what one of my colleagues would call frills or fringe in order to get to the bedrock teachings that will sustain and inspire. I would turn that phrase around and say bedrock teachings that will inspire and sustain and guide humanity's moral and spiritual evolution into the future.

Just as a bridge cannot be built on loose silt or gravel, no matter how solid that gravel or silt appears to be at the moment, your pilings for truth must go down to bedrock.

So what you are doing is clearing away centuries – centuries of this soil, gravel, silt, centuries of interpretations, of internal debates, and the results from internal debates that very few of the public are aware of. Today, I would ask both sides to make those debates available for review by a humanity that is better educated by far, on the whole, than was the humanity when I lived as the mother of Jeshua of Nazareth.

At that time, we knew our traditions. We knew the Torah, the Talmud. We knew in our hearts, we knew the stories, we knew the laws, we knew our history. As for a broader education, you will find that the populace today has a breadth of education that was lacking among many of the early converts.

Our converts may have been educated in their own philosophies, but many of them were heart-rich, educated in the business of making a living, educated in the business of survival, educated in the business of making a good home for their children. The education was different.

The church debates went on through the centuries, debates and decisions that stripped teachings of supposed undesirable aspects, that excluded teachings that did not agree with the power of the time – changes that stripped the teachings of many women. All these are the layers of gravel and clay and silt that are hiding the bedrock.

Now Nick has pulled many of these instances out and aired them, and for that we are grateful. When I say we, I say we who have watched what has happened to the beautiful teachings of a very, very brave soul, who came into the world with nothing but the intent to enrich humanity. And the teachings, his teachings, his meaning, his love, his respect, his respect for the Divine, his respect for other human beings has been distorted. His parentage has been distorted.

Among all these distortions you find me, Mother of God . . . Mother of God. (chuckling) I'm sorry I laugh. God may have something to say about that one.

But if you look at it properly, you will realize that each of my children was indeed carrying a spark of the Divine, a spark of God. Then I was Mother of God several times over.

That, however, is not what people tend to focus on. They would think that, well I think they would allow that I had two children. They would allow that only one of my sons was a Son of God, and that I dispute. My daughters and every one of my sons were as much God as I was, as was my husband, as were my stepchildren, as were my own birth children. All of them.

I was a mother. That's what I was in that lifetime. I was a mother and I sang to my children and I watched them grow and I taught them and I sent them off into the world. And now today, what have I become?

I would like to tell you, you who are building this bridge, reach down, find the bedrock upon which to build and when it comes to me, when it comes to me what will I have you ask? What will I have you say about me?

I would ask you to remove the label Mother of God from my name – unless you are willing to allow that every woman giving birth is a Mother of God. If I am a Mother of God, then every women past, present and future who gives birth, is a Mother of God. That is how pervasive the spark of God is within humanity.

Take that title away from me. I am a mother. I was a mother. There have been many mothers throughout time. I am honored to be able to have special places throughout the world where I can do healing work for I do very much pledge myself to healing.

I would also warn you, that mothers can be quite forthright with children who are not meeting their full potential, with children who are dishonoring their heritage, with children who are dishonoring their parents, with children – how should I put it? With children who have difficulty playing with other children.

I would teach, I would love, I would be forthright to the degree of understanding the child is capable of. One who is two is not as likely to respond to a deep theological argument, but one who is 20, now there we can begin. That is what I would ask you to do for me.

I am looking for a way to connect my request with what you are doing, with getting the teachings to bedrock. And the connection I have given you I am satisfied with – that all human beings are born with the spark of God and the potential to Christ Consciousness.

I was a mother. I was privileged to be the mother of one so gifted, so dedicated, so touched by the hand of God because his own Christ Consciousness had emerged and shown forth to all the world. Any parent is filled with joy to have a child of that dedication, a child like that.

But Mother of God? No. Not unless every mother throughout time is considered a Mother of God.

Now that is my personal wish. And it may not fit into your plans, or it may not fit into your plans at the moment, and that is fine. I understand that. I understand that you have a very difficult task and that you must approach this task in the most efficient and effective way possible. You are, as it were, swimming upstream.

But you are bridge builders and bridge builders are more welcome than mobs armed with stones and clubs.

If it works out that you are able to correct this Mother of God image, I would be grateful. I am a worker in service to our Creator. I was then and I am still. My heart is in that service, but Mother of God, no.

I would give you my blessings and assure you as I may, in whatever ways I can from where I work and how I work, I, too, will help clear your way.

What we can do is limited since the work that is required is dense physical and is on the ground. The work that you have undertaken is challenging. I think that is a safe word, but “challenging” is an understatement.

There are many of us who, one way or another, have a deep regard for what it is you are doing. Because those of us from our side who are not yet focused or drawn into the mythology of the Christian Church still work with humanity. And the church, as has come out in some of the chapters of Time for Truth, has perpetrated much harm in the world – has perpetrated harm to the harmony of humanity living together as One.

I will not judge those who made those decisions, but I will agree that it is time for truth. It is time to scrape away all the silt, gravel, clay and dirt that has, over the ages, obscured the beautiful bedrock of the teachings and has raised me from being the privileged mother of a very spiritual and dedicated child, to being what I am not. And I would rather be what I am. That is good enough.

On my own, with what I am, I can do much. But it would be more comfortable if I were allowed to be who I am and what I am. That is what I can say.

So you would have my thanks and my blessings. I wish you the deepest joy and satisfaction and inner peace with this work you have undertaken. You are doing much for the benefit of humanity. The bridges you are building are more profound than you could possibly imagine.

Build gently, build firmly, build consistently, but build.

Thank you. Thank you for this time to speak with you.
